

COVENANT & CONVERSATION

Thoughts on the Weekly Parsha from
RABBI LORD JONATHAN SACKS ZT"L

Former Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the Commonwealth

May the learning of these Divrei Torah be לעילוי נשמות
HaRav Ya'akov Zvi ben David Ariele zt"l

לעילוי נשמות

נחם בן יעקב אשר וגולדה בת ישראל דוד אייז ע"ה
עזריאל בן אריה לייב ומעניה בת יצחק שטרר ע"ה

Dedicated by
Dr. Robert Sreter DDS., M.S.

The Ethic of Holiness

With parshat Tetzaveh, something new enters Judaism: Torat Kohanim, the world and mindset of the Priest. Rapidly it becomes a central dimension of Judaism. It dominates the next book of the Torah, Vay-ikra. Until now, though, priests in the Torah have had a marginal presence.

This week's parsha marks the first time we encounter the idea of a hereditary elite within the Jewish people - Aaron and his male descendants - and their role to minister in the Sanctuary. For the first time we find the Torah speaking about robes of office: those of the priests and the High Priest worn while officiating in the sacred place. For the first time too we encounter the phrase, used about the robes: lekavod ule-tiferet, "for glory and beauty" (Ex. 28:2). Until this point, kavod in the sense of glory or honour has been attributed only to God. As for tiferet, this is the first time it appears in the Torah. It opens up a whole dimension of Judaism - namely, the aesthetic.

All these phenomena are related to the Mishkan, the Sanctuary, the subject of the preceding chapters. They emerge from the project of making a "home" for the infinite God within finite space. The question I want to ask here, though, is: do they have anything to do with morality? With the kind of lives the Israelites were called upon to live and their relationships to one another? If so, what is their connection to morality? And why does the priesthood appear specifically at this point in the story?

It is common to divide the religious life in Judaism into two dimensions. One the one side, the priesthood and the Sanctuary, and on the other, the prophets and the people. The priests focused on the relationship between the people and God, mitzvot bein adam leMakom. Prophets focused on the relationship between the people and one another, mitzvot bein adam lechavero. The priests supervised ritual and the prophets spoke about ethics. One group was concerned with holiness, the other with virtue. You don't need to be holy to be good. You need to be good to be holy, but that is an entrance requirement, not what being holy is about. Pharaoh's daughter, who rescued Moses when he was a baby, was good but not holy. These are two separate ideas.

In this essay I want to challenge that conception. The priesthood and the Sanctuary made a moral difference, not just a spiritual one. Understanding how they did so is important not only to our understanding of history but also to how we lead our lives today. We can see this by looking at some important recent experimental work in the field of moral psychology.

Our starting point is American psychologist Jonathan Haidt and his book, The Righteous Mind.¹ Haidt posits that in contemporary secular societies our range of moral sensibilities has become very narrow. He calls such societies WEIRD – Western, educated, industrialised, rich and democratic. They tend to see more traditional cultures as rigid, hidebound, and repressive. People from those traditional cultures tend to see Westerners as strange in abandoning much of the richness of the moral life.

To take a non-moral example: A century ago in most British and American (non-Jewish) families, dining was a formal, social occasion. The family ate together and would not begin until everyone was at the table. They would begin with grace, thanking God for the food they were about to eat. There was an order in which people were served or served themselves. Conversation around the table was governed by conventions. There were things you might discuss, and

1 Jonathan Haidt, The Righteous Mind: Why Good People Are Divided by Politics and Religion, New York: Pantheon Books, 2012.

משקיעים באנונה

A safe alternative for your investment funds!

Looking for a safe yet profitable investment in Israel with Anglo service?

Look no further!

Bemuna has been developing and constructing thousands of apartments all over Israel since 1995;

Invest with Bemuna for a guaranteed return and only 15% profit tax!

Call our investment expert Moshe Ehrlich at:
072-395-1096, or email us at: Invest@bemuna.co.il or visit our landing page at:
<https://www.genieducation.co.il/bemuna>

“It’s all about the Matza”

Classic/Extra Crispy Whole Wheat Matza

Extra crispy! Limited edition

100% organic

New! Additional supervision: Badatz of Rabbi Gross Chanichei HaYeshivot

Organic Whole Spelt Matza

Organic Whole Wheat Matza

Special new packaging that maintains freshness for a long time

100% organic

New! Additional supervision: Badatz Birkat Eliyahu of Rabbi Shmuel Eliyahu

Get your wholesale orders in early!

Kisei Rachamim handmade matzot bring you 36 years of tradition, with the rulings of the Gaon Rabbi Meir Mazuz shlit"a.

wholesale clients and retail customers 053-827-6675
 contact@mskr.co.il • תמונות שמורות כאס רחמים

Available in 1/2 kg. & 3-Matza packages.
 With the previous box design others deemed unsuitable. Today that has changed completely. Many British homes do not contain a dining table. A recent survey showed that half of all meals in Britain are eaten alone. The members of the family come in at different times, take a meal from the freezer, heat it in the microwave, and eat it watching a television or computer screen. That is not dining but serial grazing.

Haidt became interested in the fact that his American students reduced morality to two principles, one relating to harm, the other to fairness. On harm they thought like John Stuart Mill, who said that “the only purpose for which power can be rightfully exercised over any member of a civilised community, against his will, is to prevent harm to others.”² For Mill this was a political principle but it has become a moral one: if it doesn’t harm others, we are morally entitled to do what we want.

The other principle is fairness. We don’t all have the same idea of what is fair and what is not, but we all care about basic rules of justice: what is right for some should be right for all, do as you would be done to,

2 On Liberty and Other Writings, ed. Stefan Collini, New York: Cambridge University Press, 1989, p. 13.

SMARTBUY
LED LIGHTING
Licensed Electrician

Lighting
Fans
Heating
Troubleshooting
Electricity

052-7271882
smartbuyisrael@gmail.com

דפ"ר ת"ר
DAVID FUCHS

don’t bend the rules to your advantage and so on. Often the first moral sentence a young child utters is, “That’s not fair.” John Rawls formulated the best-known modern statement of fairness: “Each person has an equal right to the most extensive liberties compatible with similar liberties for others.”³

Those are the ways WEIRD people think. If it’s fair and does no harm, it is morally permissible. However – and this is Haidt’s fundamental point – there are at least three other dimensions to the moral life as understood in non-WEIRD cultures throughout the world.

One is loyalty and its opposite, betrayal. Loyalty means that I am prepared to make sacrifices for the sake of my family, my team, my co-religionists and my fellow citizens, the groups that help make me the person I am. I take their interests seriously, not only considering my own self-interest.

Another dimension is respect for authority and its opposite, subversion. Without this no institution is possible, perhaps no culture either. The Talmud illustrates this with a famous story about a would-be proselyte who came to Hillel and said, “Convert me to Judaism on condition that I accept only the Written Torah, not the Oral Torah.” Hillel began to teach him Hebrew. On the first day he taught him aleph-bet-gimmel. The next day he taught him gimmel-bet-aleph. The man protested, “Yesterday you taught me the opposite.” Hillel replied, “You see, you have to rely on me even to learn the aleph-bet. Rely on me also about the Oral Torah” (Shabbat 31a). Schools, armies, courts, professional associations, even sports, depend on respect for authority.

3 A Theory of Justice, Cambridge, MA: Belknap Press, 2005, p. 60.

The third arises from the need to ring-fence certain values we regard as non-negotiable. They are not mine to do with as I wish. These are the things we call sacred, sacrosanct, not to be treated lightly or defiled.

Why are loyalty, respect, and the sacred not considered key strands of ethics in the typical view held by liberal elites in the West? The most fundamental answer is that WEIRD societies define themselves as groups of autonomous individuals seeking to pursue their own interests with minimal interference from others. Each of us is a self-determining individual with our own wants, needs and desires. Society should let us pursue those desires as far as possible without interfering in our or other people's lives. To this end, we have developed principles of rights, liberty, and justice that allow us coexist peacefully. If an act is unfair or causes someone to suffer, we are prepared to condemn it morally, but not otherwise.

Loyalty, respect, and sanctity do not naturally thrive in secular societies based on market economics and liberal democratic politics. The market erodes loyalty. It invites us not to stay with the product we have used until now but to switch to one that is better, cheaper, faster, newer. Loyalty is the first victim of market capitalism's "creative destruction."

Respect for figures of authority – politicians, bankers, journalists, heads of corporations – has been falling for many decades. We are living through a loss of trust and the death of deference. Even the Most exquisite properties in Jerusalem!!

In a luxurious boutique residence in Talbieh,

200m apt. on one level, totally renovated at top standard, 4 bedrooms, 3.5 bathrooms, succah terrace, Old City views, 2 parking, storage, gym- very keen to sell!

DEBORAH - 054-4804767

Unique opportunity! Empty plot of 450m in the German Colony, on Yeosh St., possibility to build private house or a 2-family house of 550m, private swimming pool & large garden, building permit in 6 months-

DEBORAH – 054-4804767

Rechavia- In a new luxurious project under construction, boutique building, 134m apartment + 19m succah balcony (possibility to enlarge the flat), storage & parking.

MAYA – 054-6650184

Amazing apartment Close to Baka, with Old City views!

In a new small building, 210m apt. on one level, 5 bedrooms, 4 en suite, 50m Succah terrace with amazing views, 12m storage room. Parking & Shabbat elevator. MAYA – 054-6650184

Magnificent Authentic Private Villa, close to Emek Refaim area, totally new, 950m built, private pool, private elevator, 10 rooms, double height ceilings- FOR SERIOUS CUSTOMERS ONLY- DEBORAH – 054-4804767

Old Katamon, on a quiet lane, close to the Shtibleh -new high-end project under construction, 200m apartment + 53m succah terraces, parking, storage, attractive price!!

MAYA – 054-6650184

Mamilla, magnificent garden apartment- 152m built, 4 bedrooms, 3 bath, 110m private landscaped garden, beautiful views, all furnished, 2 parking spots.

DEBORAH – 054-4804767

New building, German Colony, boutique building of 4 apart., garden apartment 240m built + 100m private garden, parking, storage, all new! MAYA – 054-6650184

In a luxurious residence in Talbieh with doorman 24/7, beautiful finished 190m garden apartment with 75m private garden, architectural design, ready to move in, parking, storage. MAYA – 054-6650184

T&T INVESTMENTS

02-6744000

0544-804767

King David St. 26

www.real-estate-jerusalem.co.il

patient Hillel might have found it hard to deal with someone brought up on the 1979 Pink Floyd creed: “We don’t need no education, we don’t need no thought control.”

As for the sacred, that too has been lost. Marriage is no longer seen as a holy commitment, a covenant. At best it is viewed as a contract. Life itself is in danger of losing its sanctity with the spread of abortion on demand at the beginning and “assisted dying” at the end.

What makes loyalty, respect, and sanctity key moral values is that they create a moral community as opposed to a group of autonomous individuals. Loyalty bonds the individual to the group. Respect creates structures of authority that allow people to function effectively as teams. Sanctity binds people together in a shared moral universe. The sacred is where we enter the realm of that-which-is-greater-than-the-self. The very act of gathering as a congregation can lift us into a sense of transcendence in which we merge our identity with that of the group.

Once we understand this distinction, we can see how the moral universe of the Israelites changed over time. Abraham was chosen by God “so that he will instruct his children and his household after him to keep the way of the Lord by doing what is right and just” (tzedakah umishpat; Gen. 18:19). What Abraham’s servant looked for when choosing a wife for Isaac was kindness, chessed. These are the key prophetic virtues. As Jeremiah said in God’s name:

“Let not the wise boast of their wisdom, or the strong of their strength, or the rich of their wealth but let one who boasts, boast about this: that they have the understanding to know Me, that I am the Lord, who exercises kindness, justice and righteousness (chessed mishpat utzedakah) on earth, for in these I delight.” (Jer. 9:22-23)

Kindness is the equivalent of care, which is the opposite of harm. Justice and righteousness are specific forms of fairness. In other words, the prophetic virtues are close to those that prevail today in the liberal democracies of

I wouldn't change you for the world but I'd change
the world for you

JODI SAMUELS
Author, speaker, disability activist

Jodi Samuels is an author, speaker, supermom and wife living in Jerusalem, Israel. She brings her passion for life to her work as a not-for-profit leader, community activist, disability advocate and entrepreneur.

In her memoir, Chutzpah, Wisdom and Wine: The Journey of an Unstoppable Woman, Jodi shows how she uses resilience — and a lot of humor — to face life’s challenges and come out on top. The diagnosis of Down syndrome for her youngest child turned Jodi into a passionate advocate for children with special needs.

FEBRUARY 15TH | 20:00 PM |
OU ISRAEL CENTER - KEREN HAYESOD 22, JERUSALEM

Register on the link below or by emailing atkina@ou.org

*Those registered will receive the zoom link and recording of the event
For questions - please reach out to Aviyah Atkin - atkina@ou.org

the West. That is a measure of the impact of the Hebrew Bible on the West, but that is another story for another time. The point is that kindness and fairness are about relationships between individuals. Until Sinai, the Israelites were just individuals, albeit part of the same extended family that had undergone Exodus and exile together.

After the Revelation at Mount Sinai, the Israelites were a covenanted people. They had a sovereign: God. They had a written constitution: the Torah. They had agreed to become “a kingdom of priests and a holy nation” (Ex. 19:6). Yet the incident of the Golden Calf showed that they had not yet understood what it is to be a nation. They behaved like a mob. “Moses saw that the people were running wild and that Aaron had let them get out of control and so become a laughing-stock to their enemies” (Ex. 32:25) That was the crisis to which the Sanctuary and the priesthood were the answer. They turned Jews into a nation.

The service of the Sanctuary performed by the Kohanim in their robes worn le-kavod, “for honour,” established the principle of respect. The Mishkan itself embodied the principle of the sacred. Set in the middle of the camp, the Sanctuary and its service turned the Israelites into a circle at whose centre was God. And even though, after the destruction of the Second Temple, there was no more Sanctuary or functioning priesthood, Jews found substitutes that performed the same function. What Torat Kohanim brought into Judaism was the choreography of holiness and respect that helped Jews walk and dance together as a nation.

Two further research findings are

Eta Morris
JERUSALEM REALTY

Jerusalem Real Estate is my Business

CALL TODAY Eta: 054-723-3863
Rachel: 052-546-6425

Amazing stand alone homes in OLD KATAMON, TALBIYA, BAKA, GERMAN COLONY.
Call for more info

In luxurious Saidoff project near Shuk Machne Yehuda. 209 sqm on one floor, great views, underground parking & storage. Shabbat elevator, 24/7 doorman, pool & gym. 8.3 mil NIS

New garden apartment in BAKA, 100 sqm apt with 70 sqm garden 4,150,000 NIS!!!

OLD KATAMON: 109 sqm brand new apartment with underground parking and storage. 3 bedrooms plus 2.5 bathrooms, sukka terrace and Shabbat elevator: 4,600,000 NIS

Luxurious penthouse for sale in TALBIYA, over 300 sqm with private elevator and parking.
Please call for more info.

Brand new penthouse of 150 sqm on one floor with a large 150 sqm terrace in BAKA. Includes parking and shabbat elevator estimated completion 2023. 8,600,000 NIS

Magical garden apt for sale in BAKA, 229 sqm built cottage with 300 sqm of registered garden.
Please call for more info.

New apartment: 207 sqm on one floor, balcony 40 sqm Shabbat elevator. 5 min walk to BAKA
Price 9,300,000 NIS

In the heart of BAKA, 140 sqm duplex. Great views, elevator and shared parking.
PRICE 4,600,000 NIS !!!!!

New project going up in OLD KATAMON; apts from 60 sqm to 200 sqm are available. New construction. CALL RACHEL : 0525466425

Eta Morris Realty, Ltd.
etamorrisrealestate@gmail.com
Eta: 054-723-3863 • Rachel: 052-546-6425
etamorrisrealty.co.il

relevant here. Richard Sosis analysed a series of voluntary communities set up by various groups in the course of the nineteenth century, some religious, some secular. He discovered that the religious communes had an average lifespan of more than four times longer than their secular counterparts. There is something about the religious dimension that turns out to be important, even essential, in sustaining community.⁴

We now also know on the basis of considerable neuro-scientific evidence that we make our choices on the basis of emotion rather than reason. People whose emotional centres (specifically the ventromedial prefrontal cortex) have been damaged can analyse alternatives in great detail, but they can't make good decisions. One interesting experiment revealed that academic books on ethics were more often stolen or never returned to libraries than books on other branches of philosophy.⁵ Expertise in moral reasoning, in other words, does not necessarily make us more moral. Reason is often something we use to rationalise choices made on the basis of emotion.

That explains the presence of the aesthetic dimension of the service of the Sanctuary. It had beauty, gravitas, and majesty. In the time of the Temple it also had music. There were choirs of Levites singing psalms. Beauty speaks to emotion and emotion speaks to the soul, lifting us in ways reason cannot do to heights of love and awe, taking us above the narrow confines of the self into the circle at whose centre is God.

The Sanctuary and priesthood introduced into Jewish life the ethic of kedushah, holiness, which strengthened the values of loyalty, respect and the sacred by creating an environment of reverence, the humility felt by the people once they had these symbols of the Divine Presence in their midst. As Maimonides wrote in a famous passage in The Guide for the Perplexed (III:51), We do not act when in the presence of a king as we do when we are merely in the company of friends or family. In the Sanctuary people sensed they were in the presence of the King.

Reverence gives power to ritual, ceremony, social conventions, and civilities. It helps transform autonomous individuals into a collectively responsible group. You cannot sustain a national identity or even a marriage without loyalty. You cannot socialise successive generations without respect for figures of authority. You cannot defend the non-negotiable value of human dignity without a sense of the sacred. That is why the prophetic ethic of justice and compassion, had to be supplemented with the priestly ethic of holiness. ■

4 "Religion and Intragroup Cooperation: Preliminary Results of a Comparative Analysis of Utopian Communities," Cross Cultural Research 34, no. 1 (2003), pp. 11–39.

5 Jonathan Haidt, The Righteous Mind, p. 89.

Covenant and Conversation 5782 is kindly supported by the Maurice Wohl Charitable Foundation in memory of Maurice and Vivienne Wohl z"l. These weekly teachings from Rabbi Sacks zt"l are part of the 'Covenant & Conversation' series on the weekly Torah reading. Read more on www.rabbisacks.org.