The National Mission of the Shagririm Generation

The war of the past few years has shaken us all to our core. We lived through days of shattering pain, loss, and devastating injuries - and yet, from within that fire, something extraordinary emerged: an almost incomprehensible elevation of the human spirit. If anyone still thought we had raised a "screen addicted generation" - a lazy or pampered generation - reality proved them spectacularly wrong. What we have is an incredible generation. A generation on a mission. A generation whose self-sacrifice for Am Yisrael knows no limits. We saw soldiers ready to give everything. We saw heroic wives of reservists. We saw families who held each other up and carried one another through it all. At the end of a week like this one, we feel the sheer weight and magnitude of these days. In this unique time of Geula, a time in which we are witnessing miracles unseen by our ancestors for thousands of years, we also carry the profound ache of loss and the immeasurable grief of bereaved families. Only someone who truly sees the greatness of these times, can begin to cope with the depth of the pain.

And it is precisely now, when the spirit is running so high, that we must face a painful reality that has been accompanying the Dati-Leumi community for years: the challenge of singlehood. Among us live tens of thousands of single men and women: high-quality, successful, value-driven individuals who excel in every area of life, yet when it comes to building a home, something remains stuck. The war, for all the strength of character it revealed, has made this reality even harder. The psychological pressure, the extended reserve duty, the shift in priorities - all of these have created a need for professional and personal support far greater than ever before.

This past Shabbat, with Shagririm Balev, we had the privilege of spending Shabbat together with eighty singles aged thirty and up, at a shabbaton organized in partnership with the OU. The Parshiyot of that week, Tazria-Metzore, perhaps hint at something deeply important. Parshat Metzora deals with someone who spoke lashon hara, someone who caused division within Am Yisrael. And specifically after a period of war, a war whose causes included division and machloket, the spiritual "tzara'at" of our time - we need the Koach of Tazria: the power of renewal, of growth, of new homes being born in Israel. "Tsha ki tazria v'yalda..." - "When a woman conceives and gives birth..." Every wedding is another act of teshuva, another act of tikun. The enemy chooses to destroy - and we choose to build. This past Shabbat we witnessed up close the profound longing to build a home, and the extraordinary human and spiritual strength of the incredible singles of our generation.

At Shagririm Balev, we believe with complete conviction that building homes in Israel is not a private matter - it is an urgent national mission. We cannot leave our singles to fight this battle alone. The mission of Religious Zionism right now is to invest in building the national home - one individual home at a time.

Today, we celebrate 513 happy couples who met through Shagririm Balev. Over 20,000 singles are registered to the initiative, alongside more than 5,000 "ambassadors" - friends and family members who have actively enlisted to the effort of shidduchim. This approach, built on personal connection and trust, is proving itself: B"H, every two days we celebrate a wedding.

To keep growing, we need you as partners. Maintaining the technology platform, providing professional guidance, producing singles events, and training ambassadors - all of this demands enormous resources. Our next goal is clear and non-negotiable: a wedding every single day.

We are calling on you to join this revolution. Here's how you can help:

1. Join as an Ambassador - Dedicate time every week to creating shidduchim for people you know.
2. Spread the word - Encourage singles to register and take advantage of the platform.

3. Support us financially - Partner with our current fundraising campaign (link on the back page of this bulletin). Every donation is a brick in a home yet to be built - and please, encourage others to give too. Without resources, we simply cannot move forward.

Together - k'ish echad b'lev echad - we will build hundreds and thousands of new homes in Israel, and add another floor to the building of our geula. B"H, through the power of arvut hadadit, may we merit to see building after building, adei ad. ■
